The Funeral of the Late

Princess Likelike.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES.

A MOURNING PUBLIC.

The funeral of the late Princess Likelike took place yesterday. Being a Royal funeral it was largely attended, not only by residents of Honolulu but by numerous persons from the neighboring islands. The evidences of mourning were general. Manifestation of respect for the deceased were shown on all sides.

The funeral took place under circumstances wholly in accord with such a sad and solemn ceremony, and there was nothing whatever, either in the weather or the arrangements, to deprive the event of any of its touching significance. On the other hand, everything in connec-tion with the ceremony was impres-sive, and thoroughly befitted the character of the lady. Being the Sabbath Day all shops and places of business were naturally closed along the line of march, as well as elsewhere. The conditions were favorable, and although crowds of people had flocked bither from all parts of the islands, to witness the obsequies, there was no overcrowding or crushing from one end of the procession to the other. To the onlooker, there was evidence of sincere regard and esteem.

The first special service was held in the Throne room at half-past 9 o'clock, in the presence of the relatives of the deceased, Their Majesties, members of the Royal family, Cabinet Ministers, members of the Privy Council and Legislature, the Consular corps, the Judiciary, and the attending physician, Dr. McKibbin. It was conducted by the Bishop of Honolulu, assisted by his clergy. The beautiful burial service of the church of England and the character of the audience, made it as impressive and touching as the nature of the service could make it, the whole being read with a solemn impressiveness and distinctiveness that made it heard most distinctly by all present. The procession started at 2 o'clock precisely, the first minute gun being fired as the clock struck two. As it moved slowly and solemnly along toward the Mauso-leum, the bands, at intervals, meanwhile playing the "Dead March in Saul" and other airs appropriate to the occasion, the crowd stood respectfully and sympathetically on the sidewalks. It was an affecting closing moments.

The procession formed on King streeet, moved along King street to Nuuanu street, up Nuuanu street to the Mausoleum, in the following

On arriving near the Mausoleum. there was a halt by the military and fire companies, they drawing up on either side while the catafalque passed through. Within the Mausoleum were seated the members of the Royal family. The Kawaihau Club sang the 23rd psalm, "The Lord is My Shephered," to a plaintive chant, after which the Bishop read the committal service. The Rev. Alexander Mackintosh offered up the final prayers, the choir sang the hymn, "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er," and the solemn ceremony was ended. A few distinctive kahilis were left within the Mausoleum, and the doors were closed in silence and solemnity.

The return to the city was headed by the Royal Hawaiian Band, and before sundown the city and its surroundings had assumed its normal condition.

Requiescut in Puce. SUPREME COURT.

AT CHAMBERS-BEFORE PRESTON J.

MONDAY, February 28th. In the matter of application of Mr. A. C. Smith on behalf of Peter Henson, for a writ of habeas corpus. Mr. A. C. Smith for the applicant, the Attorney-General for the Grown. The grounds raised by counsel for the applicant were, (1) reason for arrest, (2) why Henson was held, (3) how the Crown purposed to dispose of the prisoner.

The Attorney-General stated that the prisoner had been arrested as a deserter, and was held at the request of the master of the bark Drotting Sophia, and they proposed to dispose of him according to law.

His Honor said that when arrested, Henson should have been tendered on board the vessel from which he was alleged to have deserted. He allowed time for the Attorney-General to amend the return. The return being amended His Honor stated that he should hold that the order of arrest at the captain's request was insufficient, scene throughout, and there was but one sentiment in those solemn charge of the prisoner Peter Henson.

Charles Stuart Caverley recently published a specimen of his lyrical talent, entirled "Mr. Leslie's Sorg" of which the following two verses are a specimen:

There is a rapture exceeding all measure, There is a rapture exceeding all measure,
Left to enliven this sorrowful world;
Who does not think of that moment with pleasure,
When first round his lips the wreathing smoke curled?
Parents look grave or sick,
Call it a nasty trick,
Say it is ruinous—say it is wrong;
Happy indeed is his lot,
Who, for these caving not,
Definite a shallowner.

Puffs like a chimney pot, All the day long. Some, who are trout led with endless entreaties, Strive for a time this stripht to forego; Vain are their efforts, their failure complete is— I life with an smoking's unbearably slow.
Soon their mistake they first,
Leave all such thoughts behind,
Wise resolutions all vanish in smoke; And to their cost they see That, if their life must be Unfumigatory, 'Twil be no joke.
